

A botched job?

27 de octubre de 2021

To botch something is to do a task badly or not to complete a task, a repair or a project. A “botch” is the noun (chapuza).

Examine these:

- The EU, in 2019, approved the end of the hour/clock changes that have occurred in October and March each year. The changes have not been implemented: it is a “botched job” (una chapuza).
- The EU has botched the changes (...ha estropeado los cambios).

Many people think the a clock/hour change every six months is stupid. However, the EU leaders have “botched it”.

Why? Who knows? The EU top dogs are “botchers” (incompetentes).
