

Have you ever displayed ire?

19 de mayo de 2021

If someone shows ire, it is an obvious display of anger. Examine these sentences:

- Mr. Sanchez's plan to raise taxes has drawn the ire of the people (...ha provocado la ira de la gente).

"Ire" (ira) is another word for anger or wrath (furor). It is a noun, and the adjective is "ireful".

- Despite the ire of Mr. Sanchez (a pesar de la cólera del Señor Sanchez...), Mr. Podemos has suggested taxes of 80% on the middle class.

Now the adjective and adverb (irefully).

- He is such an ireful (iracundo) person, always displaying his anger.
- He irefully (airadamente) attacked the government's plans for lower taxes.

So, have you ever displayed ire? Or perhaps behaved irefully? Has a mortal sometimes said that you are ireful?
